

People who are ruined by stocks are not people who usually lose money in stocks.

People who keep losing their stocks do not actively do the stocks themselves, and do not put a lot of money even if they buy stocks.

It is even rare to put all your property in stocks, or buy stocks as you pay a lot of debt.

Those who are ruined by stocks are people who earn some money from their usual stocks.

I am investing a lot of money with confidence in making money from stocks, and I have not lost it so I buy stocks with debt without much fear.

The problem is that the stock price has plummeted once in a while.

You can usually get a high profit by taking a big debt, pulling a lot of credit and stock,

It's a crash. It's not often a crash, but it's always happening once or twice a few years.

Many people are tinkering with stock investments, mostly at an abnormality that occurs once in these years.

What matters in equity investment is not how much you normally get.

How do we avoid this one or two-time stock price crash? If we avoid this, we can continue to earn revenue,

If you can't avoid it, you have to spit out all the money you've earned

It's much harder than what stocks will rise, what stocks will be able to earn.

You should also care how you manage your funds to avoid falling in this stock market crash.

It should not be just 'buy this stock with the money that this stock is going to rise'.

People with low grades focus on how to get the problem right.

But among those who get higher grades above 90, how do you make mistakes?

It is more important to know if the problem is wrong. How to deal with the trap problem that is presented with one or two problems has a great impact on the grades.

Neither casinos nor investments. It's important how to make a profit,

More importantly, how do we lose a lot?

How to avoid a once-in-a-lifetime crash is more important to maintain revenue.
